

It has come to my attention the FCC is considering weakling the New Jersey State Do Not Call Law. I am firmly against diluting the current New Jersey Law. I have an unlisted telephone number and I have done so to protect my privacy. In the past I would receive solicitations from telemarketers at all hours of the day which greatly annoy me. I have never purchased any goods or services from a telemarketer and I never will. Companies who solicit business through telemarketers are selling overpriced, poor quality goods or services and high pressure sale tactics that are a disgrace. These companies feed on weak, lonely and those who can not afford the good or services being offered to the potential customer. When they would contact me I would simply stop them or hang up on them. Bottom line I am against telemarketers contacting potential customers for any reason, if organizations wish to contact me, I prefer they do it by mail where I simply throw the solicitation in the mail. Telephone calls from a telemarketer are invading my and others privacy and I wish not to be contacted by them... period

Thank you in advance for your consideration in this matter.

Michael P. Sullivan